Love to inspire people? Pursue a rewarding career of a life coach

Life coaching is currently a fast-growing, highly rewarding profession, but still relatively undersupplied in Australia. As a life coach, you have the ability to maximise the potential that a client has by encouraging them, guiding them, creating goals and measuring them. In essence, life coaches have the power to get the very best out of individuals and enable them to make their own decisions for their own personal growth.

The Certificate in Life Coaching is specially designed to pave your way into this respected and promising profession. You will have the opportunity to interact with and learn from very successful, highly qualified and experienced professionals in the industry.

There are different types of life coaches such as career coach, personal coach, business coach and spiritual coach. The key is to put your experience with your passion and find a coaching practice you can put your heart into.
